“Who Really Wrote the Book of Mormon?
The Spalding Enigma”
by Wayne Cowdrey, Howard Davis, and Arthur Vanick

Index to Preface, Introduction, Chapters 1-12, And Afterword
(Not Indexed: Foreword & Endnotes; Superficially Indexed: Appendices)

Index prepared by William Moore, Jr., editor.
© July, 2005, all rights reserved

NOTE: Because occurrences of the word “Mormon” (in its various forms) and references to The Book of Mormon appear so frequently throughout the book, these (with a few exceptions) are not indexed.

Once a reference is located on a given page of the main text, one should pay particular attention to associated endnote citations if there are any. These endnotes are not included in this index, and may contain additional useful information or references. Also not indexed (except for major topics) are the various Appendices which offer a large amount of research, especially with respect to the Cowdery family.

Please also notice that page numbers in this index have been consolidated, which is to say that if a reference appears at least once on each of several consecutive pages, those page numbers are given collectively rather than individually. For example if “Palmyra” occurs on, say, pages 41, 42, 43 and 44, the index will indicate 41-44, even though the various references may not relate directly to each other in the flow of text.
